

DEALING WITH NORMAL PUPPY BEHAVIOR: CHEWING

Puppies explore their world by putting things in their mouths. In addition, puppies are teething until they're about 6 months old, which usually causes them some discomfort. Chewing not only facilitates teething, but also makes sore gums feel better. While it is perfectly normal for puppies to chew on furniture, shoes, and shrubbery, these behaviors can be a problem for you. Furthermore, your puppy will not magically "outgrow" this behavior as he matures. However, by shaping your puppy's behavior, and teaching him which objects are acceptable chew toys and which are not, you can minimize chewing problems past 6 months of age.

DISCOURAGING UNACCEPTABLE BEHAVIOR

It is virtually inevitable that your puppy will, at some point, chew up something you value. This is part of raising a puppy! You can, however, prevent most problems by taking the following precautions:

- Minimize chewing problems by puppy-proofing your house. Put the trash out of reach, inside a cabinet or outside on a porch, or buy containers with locking lids. Encourage children to pick up their toys and don't leave socks, shoes, eye glasses, briefcases, cell phones, or TV remote controls lying around within your puppy's reach.
- If you actually catch your puppy chewing on something he shouldn't, offer them a treat and when they take the treat, take the inappropriate object, and then give them an appropriate toy. Play with him lavishly when he takes the toy in his mouth.
- Don't give your puppy objects to play with that can cause confusion, such as old socks, old shoes, or old children's toys that closely resemble items that are off limits. They cannot tell the difference!
- Closely supervise your puppy. Don't give them the chance to go off alone and get into trouble. Use baby gates, close doors, or tether puppy to you with a six-foot leash so you can keep an eye on the puppy.
- When you must be gone from the house, confine your puppy to a small, safe area, such as a laundry room. You may also begin to crate train your puppy. Puppies can generally hold their bladder one hour for every month.
- Make sure your puppy is getting adequate physical activity. Puppies left alone in a yard do not play by themselves. Take your puppy for walks and /or play a game of fetch as often as possible.
- Your puppy learns what is appropriate in the house when they are in the house with you, so give your puppy plenty of people time.
- Take your puppy to an obedience class to teach them important commands, like "leave it".

ENCOURAGING ACCEPTABLE BEHAVIOR

- Provide your puppy with appropriate toys
- Rotate your puppy's toys. Puppies, like babies, are often more interested in unfamiliar or novel objects. Put out four or five toys for a few days, then pick those up and put out four or five different ones.
- Experiment with different kinds of toys. When you introduce a new toy to your puppy, watch them to make sure they won't tear it up and ingest the pieces.
- Consider the various types of toys that can be stuffed with food. Putting tidbits of food inside chew toys focuses your puppy's chewing activities on those toys instead of on unacceptable objects.
- If your puppy is teething, provide appropriate teething toys to soothe their sore gums.

WHAT NOT TO DO

Never discipline or punish your puppy after-the-fact. If you discover a chewed item even minutes after he's chewed it, you're too late to administer a correction. Animals associate punishment with what they're doing at the time they're being punished. Dog and puppies cannot reason that, "I tore up those shoes an hour ago and that's why I'm being scolded now." Some people believe this is what a puppy is thinking because he runs and hides or because he "looks guilty.” Guilty looks are canine appeasing postures that dogs show when they feel threatened. When you’re angry and upset, the puppy feels threatened by your tone of voice, body postures, and/or facial expressions, so he may hide or show appeasing postures. Punishment after-the-fact will not only fail to eliminate the undesirable behavior, but could provoke other undesirable behaviors, such as aggression or fear.

OTHER REASONS FOR DESTRUCTIVE BEHAVIOR

Although most destructive chewing by puppies is normal behavior, some puppies may exhibit destructive behavior for the same reasons as adult dogs. Examples include separation anxiety, fear related behaviors, and attention-getting behavior. For help with these problems, contact a qualified trainer.
