INFINITE TIMELINE

November 12–February 11
Gallery 1

Infinite Timeline features sculptural works by Regina Herod and paintings by Alexandra Wiesenfeld that explore the mutability of history and storytelling as they relate to themes of nature, reason, and empire. In their approach to producing works featured in the exhibition, each artist employed repurposed materials such as wax, wood, metal, paper, or plastic as a means to draw to mind the cyclical generation of new life from the detritus of history. Herod and Wiesenfeld's works share a deep consideration of the forces that define our general understanding of the past and a critical attention to the conditions that shape the future.
